

longitudinally therethrough, and adapted to receive [a] the mounting member coupled to the tree shaker;

a resilient polymeric web extending between and coupled to said end sections, said web defining a first surface for engaging said tree trunk; and wherein said pad defines a pair of apertures approximately parallel to said bores and extending at least part way through said pad, each of said apertures being positioned adjacent to one of said bores.